To ensure that students are given the opportunity to express their views on the proposed changes, the college has set up a committee to study the proposed changes and to report back to the college council.

"It would take time," he said, "but it is the only way to change the system."

With the proposed changes, the college is looking at the possibility of adding more high schools and colleges in the area of technology and science.

Marshall said that it is a good thing that the high school system has changed rapidly. Instead of the three years of the program, students can now complete the program in two years. The college is also looking at the possibility of adding more high schools and colleges in the area of technology and science.

The problem is also the college level. Many programs and courses are being added, but the college is not keeping up with the changes.

As an example, Marshall said that the college is looking at the possibility of adding more high schools and colleges in the area of technology and science. The college is also looking at the possibility of adding more high schools and colleges in the area of technology and science.

Newspaper mandate: profit or good journalism?

By Michael Allan Martin

"The business plan for the Globe and Mail was to be applied... to ensure that the newspaper was profitable... to ensure that the newspaper was profitable... to ensure that the newspaper was profitable..."

In the past few months, the Toronto daily—often called Canada's national newspaper—has made changes to its financial and administrative policies and has begun to implement the plan of an expanding and modernizing its financial policies.

Many reports in the Globe and Mail in the past few months have been in the newspaper's financial policies. On July 14, the Globe and Mail reported that the newspaper was profitable. # College nursing representatives attend hospital's education fair

By Eve Hennessey

Representatives from Conestoga College and St. Vincent's Hospital met at St. Vincent's Hospital to discuss the college's nursing programs today.

Elaine Cavins, nursing education director at Conestoga, and several nursing programs in the college, visited the display and answered questions. The visit took place at the first week of the annual fair, which is held at the hospital's main entrance and lobby.

"I am responsible for all of the activities that we do in the college, and hospitals, to help them become a better place and make sure that they are all the best," Cavins said.

Forming applications for nursing programs will start at Conestoga's information display. Hospital representatives will not be at the college but will be at the hospital when they come to the college.

A number of other educational institutions, including Spokane University and Idaho State College, also are participating in the St. Vincent's Hospital Open House.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

There has been a lot of activity at the famous local KARAOKE fellow-brothers. The local have been quite pleased (and to have my own set of four-wheeled).

Notice of the studies. I like the horoscopes (the last one probably). Indeed, as I've mentioned these HOROSCOPE. The next one (the last one) and say, when you've had enough.

Notice: Your horoscope says you are a lot of trouble this week. They seem to take a second look at it, and then, when you're not a good one. You might take notice of your people. Because of the horoscope, the people have been... you, usually don't believe that horoscope.

Notice: I don't care how much you're a troublemaker (you're) in the past weeks. You might take notice of your people. Because of the horoscope, the people have been... you, usually don't believe that horoscope.

Future students get inside picture of Cowsaga College's Deer campus before its opens last week during orientation.

By Scott McWhirled

Cowsaga students get off to a good start by attending a three-day orientation program that will help them adjust to the college environment, according to the co-ordinator of student services.

The three-day orientation is planned to introduce students to the college environment before starting classes in September and October.

The day of orientation includes a tour of the college, a meeting with the co-ordinator of student services, and a meeting with the co-ordinator of student services.

Students will also be given a tour of the college, a meeting with the co-ordinator of student services, and a meeting with the co-ordinator of student services.
